

Take the stress out of compliance.

Compliance is an ever-growing burden on the modern farmer. As regional councils continue to tighten their environmental planning requirements, the need for transparency over land use and land treatment applications is rising rapidly. Being able to prove what was applied, where, when and the application rate is crucial for your farming business.

TracMap's Proof of Application data has proved to be an integral part of farmers reporting back to regional council and other authorities.

Let's take it a step further. Save time in the office spent manually inputting your Proof of Application data into excel, notebook or other management tools to then put into your farm environment plan.

Let FarmIQ do the hard work for you.

FarmIQ Enterprise Pack subscribers receive proof of application data from TracMap Online automatically which means you can be confident that your data is accurate and up to date. You're able to do all your Farm Environmental Planning (FEP) within FarmIQ, which makes sense, with all your farm data in one place. Reports are quick and simple to assemble through FarmIQ and sharing these to external parties is straightforward.

It's not just about compliance, measure the impact of effluent, chemical and fertiliser application on your pasture covers and ultimately, your production with TracMap and FarmIQ.

Data sharing made easy.

Proof of application data is becoming increasingly important to your farming customers for reporting, planning and compliance purposes. You can now ensure it's available in the places they need it the most. The integration between FarmIQ and TracMap makes it easier than ever to share proof of application data. This data can now be sent automatically to your customers, into their FarmIQ account as soon as the job has been completed in TracMap Online. Very soon, the integration will go two-way, allowing your customers to also create orders from within the FarmIQ platform. These orders will appear in your TracMap Online account, streamlining the process even further. Eliminate the paper trail, and use the time saved to grow your business.
